HOLLYWOOD UNDEAD WINS VIRGIN MOBILE USA'S "BOOK THE BAND" TO CAPTURE SPOT ON STAR-STUDED ROSTER AT VIRGIN MOBILE FESTIVAL

Masked Alternative Rock Group on A&M/Octone Records Will Perform Live For the First Time Ever at the Largest Music Festival on the East Coast

WARREN, NJ, July 23, 2008 – For a band that has only performed online and never live, the 2008 Virgin Mobile Festival, the largest festival on the East Coast, figures to be quite a premiere. Fueled by the popularity of MySpace and other social networking sites, Los Angeles's own Hollywood Undead (www.myspace.com/hollywoodundead) nabbed more than half the votes in Virgin Mobile USA's second annual Book The Band contest sponsored by Kyocera Wireless and MySpace.

Hollywood Undead will join more than 40 acts including an all-star lineup featuring Foo Fighters, Jack Johnson, Kanye West, Nine Inch Nails, Stone Temple Pilots and Bob Dylan. The Virgin Mobile Festival takes place August 9 and 10 at Baltimore's Pimlico RaceCourse® with entertainment spanning across two stages, a dance tent, and a total of 25 acres of arts and attractions. With their signature masks on, Hollywood Undead will take to the stage on August 10, kicking off Day Two of the festival with their fusion of hip-hop, emo and metal.

"Music has always been at the core of the Virgin Mobile USA brand and for that reason, Book The Band is a natural extension of Virgin Mobile Festival," said Ron Faris, Director of Brand Development & Partnerships, Virgin Mobile USA. "As far as we're concerned, this year's contest was won on the mobile phone, with Hollywood Undead ramping up a huge campaign to get over 186,485 text votes. We at Virgin Mobile USA along with Kyocera Wireless are thrilled to host their first live show at our Virgin Mobile Festival."

"Book the Band is a brilliant extension of the next wave of music discovery, and Virgin Mobile Festival has certainly found promising talent in Hollywood Undead to open Day Two," said Sir Richard Branson, whose legendary Virgin Festival heritage is the inspiration for the Virgin Mobile Festival. "I'm curious to see how well they'll do going from MySpace to our space!"

"We can't think of a better venue than the Virgin Mobile Festival to play our first-ever live show," said J-Dog of Hollywood Undead. "To stand in front of the same fans who will be there to see musical legends perform is unreal. We'll do everything we can to make our first show something for fans to remember."

Hollywood Undead beat out four other up-and-coming bands by receiving an overwhelming 53% (285,000 votes) of the more than 540,000 votes placed online and via text between June 16 through July 21. Hollywood Undead will release their highly anticipated debut album, "Swan Songs" (via A&M/Octone) on August 26, 2008. Tampa-based Automatic Loveletter came in second place with more than 161,000 votes. New Jersey's The Parlor Mob, Brooklyn's We Are Scientists, and New York's The Virgins came in third, fourth and fifth, respectively.
